Free TV response to the Convergence Review Framing Paper

Free TV Australia today responded to the Convergence Review's Framing Paper.

"Free TV supports the fundamental principles put forward in the Framing Paper to underpin a new regulatory framework emerging from the Review," Free TV Australia CEO Julie Flynn said.

"We welcome the Committee's decision to put forward principles relating to diversity, innovation, local content, news and information, community standards and spectrum management," said Julie Flynn.

"It is important that we have an open and robust debate about what we want our media regulation to achieve and how we can ensure that it is both future-proof and consistent across delivery platforms," Ms Flynn said.

Free TV's submission also identifies additional principles that must frame the Review's thinking about the future Australian media environment and highlights key emerging regulatory issues.

"The release of the Framing Paper was an important step forward in the Review process and we look forward to continuing to work closely with the Review Committee," said Ms Flynn.
